Wm. Leyman, District representative of the Maxwell Motor Co., who is in the city as guest of H. B. Leary, jr., predicts that though this year was the big year in the automobile business, next season will be still larger. Mr. Leyman has just returned from a factory conference at Detroit which was attended by factory men from all over the county of the by factory men from all over the coun

The season of the year is at hand when The season of the year is at hand when the announcements of next year's model car, have in the past, been in the habit of being sprung. From reports this custom will not be so extensively followed this season. It was in the early days of the business almost a necessity. During July and August the dealer feit that he was about to pass through a period when selling motor cars was an unusually difficult task, Many prospects were away for the summer, others were planning to take their vacations, and business in general was at a low ebb. Wise to conditions, the manufacturers took the oportunity to inject a little "pep" into ness in general was at a low good to conditions, the manufacturers took the opertunity to inject a little "pep" into things by offering something new for the public approval. Result: During these two months business picked up and was up to, if not above, normal. Conditions have changed. Today selling motor cars is an all-year business, and gradually the time for bringing out the latest in motor car construction is going over to its proper time, the New York Show held the first week of each year.
